BRAND IDENTITY & APPLICATION GUIDELINES

A practical guide to The Deco House visual language, tone and applications—built around architectural restraint, tactile materials and considered luxury.

REVISED EDITION · OCTOBER 2026

01 Brand foundation

The Deco House brings surfaces, materials and solutions together under one considered design destination. The identity should feel architectural, tactile and quietly premium—not ornate or trend-led.

Brand idea

Material-led sophistication. A calm, curated world where every surface, finish and detail contributes to the architecture of a space.

Brand essence

Considered materials. Elevated spaces.

Positioning

A premium interior-materials destination for architects, interior designers, developers and discerning homeowners seeking a cohesive selection of surfaces, materials and design solutions.

Personality

Architectural — precise and spatial. Refined — understated rather than flashy. Tactile — grounded in texture. Assured — knowledgeable, calm and dependable.

Audience

Architects and interior designers; premium residential and commercial clients; builders, developers and material specifiers.

Brand promise

A thoughtfully curated material experience, supported by product knowledge, dependable guidance and a cohesive design point of view.

02 Logo system

The wordmark is the primary brand asset. Its thin geometric letterforms and custom line details evoke plans, joins, edges and architectural construction.

Primary lock-up

Variants and clear space

Use the primary horizontal lock-up with descriptor for signage, stationery and brand communications. Use wordmark-only artwork in compact spaces and reverse artwork in ivory or champagne on dark plum. Maintain clear space equal to the cap-height of “THE” on all sides.

Sizing and correct use

For print, use the full lock-up at approximately 45 mm wide or larger; for digital, aim for at least 220 px wide. Maintain proportions and contrast. Do not stretch, rotate, add effects, recolour individual letters or place the logo over busy imagery.

Production note: Rebuild the supplied mockup logo as approved vector artwork (SVG, EPS or AI) before commercial production.

03 Colour palette

A material-inspired palette drawn from deep plum, warm metallic accents, natural stone and soft ivory.

Deep Plum
#241923 — Primary brand anchor

Espresso Plum
#34252F — Secondary dark

Champagne Brass
#B4A17A — Fine accents and foil

Warm Taupe
#A79A8B — Supporting neutral

Stone Beige
#D0C5B7 — Soft backgrounds

Architectural Ivory
#F4F0E9 — Primary light background

Soft Charcoal
#37332F — Body text

Suggested colour balance

Let ivory and stone carry most layouts (55–65%). Use plum as the identity anchor (20–30%). Taupe and charcoal support hierarchy. Keep champagne brass to small highlights, fine lines and finishes (about 5% or less).

Accessibility

Use plum or charcoal for small text on light backgrounds. Reserve champagne for larger text, foil and decorative details. Confirm contrast and physical print proofs before production.

Typography board reference

Visual reference for the selected Architectural Minimalism direction and its recommended type pairing. This page is retained as a visual board; the separate numbered typography chapter has been removed.

04 Art direction & graphic language

The visual world should feel like a considered materials showroom: natural stone, warm light, dark timber, tactile paper, metal details and quiet architectural framing.

Photography direction

Prioritise real materials, close-up textures, joints, grain, veining and finish. Use warm directional light, soft shadows and natural tonal variation. Show materials in context, balancing wide architectural frames with macro details. Keep edits natural and avoid excessive saturation or artificial shine.

Graphic elements and layouts

Use fine rules, restrained grids, architectural linework, cropped rectangles and material swatches. Keep generous margins, consistent alignment, one main message per page or post, large material imagery and concise copy.

Materials and finishes

Recommended touchpoints include uncoated ivory stock, deep plum dyed paper, champagne foil, blind embossing, debossing, matte lamination and subtle textured stocks. Avoid mirror-bright gold.

Mood words

Tactile · Architectural · Warm · Curated · Precise · Quietly luxurious · Timeless

05 Verbal identity

The Deco House speaks with clarity and design intelligence. The tone is considered and confident, focusing on material quality, application and the experience of a space.

Voice pillars

Informed: explain materials, finishes, performance and applications clearly.
Considered: use fewer, more meaningful words.
Assured: make recommendations without overclaiming.
Inspirational: connect materials to atmosphere, detail and lived experience.

Writing style

Prefer short, well-edited sentences. Use specific words such as grain, finish, tactility, edge, proportion, durability and light. Avoid generic luxury clichés, excessive exclamation marks and unsupported claims.

Sample brand lines

Materials, thoughtfully considered.
The details that define a space.
A considered world of surfaces and finishes.
Where material meets meaning.
Surfaces. Materials. Solutions.

Sample product caption

A study in natural movement. Expressive veining, a tactile finish and a quiet tonal palette bring depth to the surface—designed to sit effortlessly within a considered interior.

06 Brand applications

Showroom signage

Use dimensional letters or a carefully fabricated plaque against ivory plaster, stone or dark timber. Champagne/brushed brass may be used selectively. Ensure legibility and avoid competing signage.

Business cards and stationery

Front: deep plum with a champagne wordmark. Reverse: ivory with contact details in charcoal. Use generous margins and premium uncoated stock; consider blind embossing or subtle foil.

Bags, packaging and catalogues

Deep plum with champagne logo and warm neutral handles, or ivory packaging with plum typography. Catalogue covers can use a strong material image or minimal plum cover. Keep product names and specifications consistent.

Digital and social media

Alternate material close-ups, completed spaces, product explainers and editorial stories. Use ivory for information-led posts and plum for announcements. Keep logo placement consistent and credit photographers/designers where required.

Presentations and proposals

Open with a strong architectural image or minimal brand cover. Use clear section dividers and restrained colour. Prioritise legibility in product tables.

07 Digital system & consistency

Digital foundations

Website: ivory backgrounds, charcoal body text, plum navigation and champagne micro-accents. Buttons: plum fill with ivory text, or plum outline on ivory. Social: 4:5 portrait feed posts and 9:16 stories/reels; keep essential text away from interface edges. Icons: thin-line, geometric forms with consistent stroke weight.

Final asset checklist

- Primary logo in AI/EPS/SVG and high-resolution PNG.
- Horizontal, stacked, wordmark-only and reverse variants.
- Approved RGB/HEX and CMYK colour values, with print proofs.
- Font links/licences and a short typography usage sheet.
- Business card, letterhead, email signature and presentation templates.
- Social post/story templates and website favicon.
- Logo clear-space, minimum-size and incorrect-use examples.

Governance

Keep one approved source folder for all assets. Do not recreate the logo by typing the name in a similar font. New campaigns and partner lock-ups should follow the same palette, typography and spacing principles. Review print proofs before bulk production.

Production note

The HEX values and visual recommendations are proposed digital specifications based on the supplied mockup. Confirm exact logo geometry, colour values and print specifications before commercial production.
